Deleting text messages is usually a straightforward affair, but some people may be confused about (or unaware of) the different ways you can select and delete text messages on an Android device. This guide shows you how. The following instructions cover Google's Android Messages app and the stock app that comes pre-installed on Samsung phones. We also show how to delete SMS messages in Facebook Messenger if you set it as your default. All instructions listed below show how to delete single and multiple messages. However, if you accidentally deleted the wrong message(s), we suggest a few tools to get them back. Delete an individual text message on Android This applies to Google's Messages app. The icon has lines in a conversation bubble. Step 1: Tap to open Messages. Step 2: Tap and hold on the message you want to be deleted. Tap the X in the top left corner if you marked the wrong message, or tap the message to deselect. Step 3: Tap the trash icon located in the top right corner. Step 4: Tap Delete in the pop-up window to confirm. Delete an individual text message on Samsung This applies to Samsung's stock Messages app installed on its phones. The icon has dots in a conversation bubble. Step 1: Tap to open Messages. Step 2: Tap and hold on the message you want to be deleted. Tap it again to deselect it if you marked the wrong message. Step 3: Tap Delete located on the slide-up menu at the bottom. Step 4: Tap Delete in the pop-up window to confirm. Delete an individual text message on Facebook Messenger If you're using Facebook's app as your default SMS client, you can filter out your private messages by tapping the SMS button in the app's search bar, leaving only SMS messages visible. Tap it again to add Facebook messages back to the list. Step 1: Tap to open Facebook Messenger. Step 2: Tap and hold on the message you want to be deleted. Step 3: Tap Delete listed on the pop-up menu. Unfortunately, there's no way to delete multiple messages at once from within the Messenger app. Delete multiple messages at once on Android This applies to Google's Messages app. The icon has lines in a conversation bubble. Step 1: Tap to open Messages. Step 2: Tap and hold on the first message you want to delete. A checkmark should appear to its left. Step 3: Tap on all other messages you want to be deleted. Step 4: Tap Delete located on the slide-up menu at the bottom. Step 5: Tap Delete in the pop-up window to confirm. Delete multiple messages at once on Samsung This applies to Samsung's stock Messages app installed on its phones. The icon has dots in a conversation bubble. Step 1: Tap to open Messages. Step 2: Tap and hold on the first message you want to delete. A checkmark should appear to its left. Step 3: Tap on all other messages you want to be deleted. Step 4: Tap Delete located on the slide-up menu at the bottom. Step 5: Tap Delete in the pop-up window to confirm. Recovering text messages If you accidentally deleted texts and need to restore them, immediately put the Android device into airplane mode. This prevents further changes to your local data, in this case, your phone overwriting deleted texts with new ones. After that, you have two options. Use Google Drive One way to restore deleted messages is to reset the phone to its factory defaults and then restore it with a backup saved on Google Drive. However, you need to check this backup first and make sure it wasn't saved after you deleted the texts. If it was saved after the deletion, there's no reason to take this route. If you haven't backed up to Google Drive, skip this section altogether. Step 1: Tap to open Google Drive. Step 2: Tap the three-line "hamburger" icon located in the top left corner. Step 3: Tap Backups listed on the roll-out menu. Step 4: Tap Backup, listed under This Device. On this screen, you should see an SMS entry. If it's dated before you deleted the texts, then you can use it to restore your deleted texts. This is an extreme option, however, but the only one outside of using third-party software. Use third-party software Here are a few suggestions that work well in retrieving deleted texts. Android Data Recovery ($50) This is one of the more popular tools in recovering data from an Android phone, including text messages. Available for Windows 10 and MacOS, this desktop software will scan all deleted items and present a list of data you can pick and choose to recover. It even retrieves deleted photos, videos, messages, and photos delivered through WhatsApp. Android Recovery Wondershare Dr.Fone ($70+) This restoration tool supports the most modern Android devices. You can also download and install the application on both MacOS and Windows-based devices. This program will enable you to promptly retrieve text messages, images, videos, and even information from third-party apps like WhatsApp and others. In addition, it can help you to collect lost files from your device, resulting from a system failure, rooting error, and many more unfortunate situations. Wondershare FonePaw ($49+) This specific software will allow you to recover information from machines operating on the latest version of Android, all the way back to the ancient Android 2.1. It's compatible with all the most popular brands and will also assist you in recovering many different types of data, from text messages and contacts to images, media, and documents. It can even retrieve WhatsApp data. The restoration consists of internal storage, as well as SD cards and SIM cards. Fonepaw SMS Backup & Restore (Free) To protect your text messages and make sure they're secure, you must have an application that produces backups of your texts. If you regularly create backups, then you're one of the fortunate ones. This application will allow you to save texts and call records. It runs on devices with the Android 4.0.3 version or above and is extremely easy to use, permitting you to back up to Google Drive or Dropbox. Google Play Store Editors' Recommendations Text messages can sometimes be hard to keep track of and often vanish under mysterious circumstances, including mistaken deletion, a flawed iOS upgrade, a jailbreak fail, or another unfortunate circumstance. Regardless of how they were lost, though, you can restore missing text messages to your iPhone — most of the time. That's because your iPhone saves all text message, MMS, and iMessage data in an SQLite database — an open-source, back-end utility built into all mobile phones (and most computers) and bundled into many popular apps. This function operates silently and automatically in the background. When you delete a message, the space gets transformed from allocated to unallocated while the message data remains intact. Over time, it will be overwritten by new messages flowing in. Before new data overwrites the old data, you can still recover those messages. The first thing to do is to stop messaging until after you retrieve your lost messages. Depending on how you back up your iPhone — with iCloud or directly to your computer — there are various methods you can use to recover lost texts, even after an iPhone reset. Third-party apps can also help under certain conditions. We'll walk you through the various ways to recover text messages using iOS 13 and 14, which are identical. Restoring texts from an iCloud backup If you have iCloud Backup enabled and your iPhone backs up on schedule, then your deleted texts should be available. The service backs up messages sent via iMessage, SMS, and MMS, but it requires the same SIM card as when you made the backup. Once your backup is restored, you should be able to access any texts that were on your phone when you first backed up. Step 1: Go to Settings > Name > iCloud > iCloud Backup. Step 2: Make sure iCloud Backup is enabled. Step 3: Erase your iPhone by going into Settings > General > Reset. Step 4: Choose Erase All Content and Settings. Step 5: You'll be asked if you want to restore your iPhone from an iCloud Backup. Step 6: Choose Restore from iCloud Backup. Restoring texts from your Mac (with MacOS 10.15 Catalina) If you back up on your computer, you may have a series of backups already saved. To get started, first disable Find My iPhone on your handset. Tap Settings > Your Name > Find My > Find My iPhone and switch the toggle off. (Be prepared to type in your Apple ID password for it to turn off Find My iPhone.) Now, do the following: Step 1: Connect your phone to your computer via USB. Step 2: Open the Finder by double-clicking on your Hard Drive icon. Step 3: Under the Locations sidebar, look for your iPhone and click on it. Step 4: Click Manage Backups to view all the saved backups and choose which one you want to restore your messages. The backup should predate when you deleted the messages. Step 5: Click Restore iPhone. Consult your service provider If that fails, contact your ISP's customer service or tech support department. It's possible — but not guaranteed — that your provider stored a backup of messages sent and received from your handset that is not yet overwritten. If so, you can likely arrange to access them. Try your ISP before resorting to a third-party app. Restoring texts with a third-party app as a last resort, you can try a number of reputable third-party apps that allow you to retrieve lost text messages from your iPhone. Just plug your iPhone into your computer, launch the app, and follow the on-screen directions. These apps tend to function similarly and can recover many file types, from texts to call history. Below are a few we've discovered that can help you get a handle on this task. iMobile PhoneRescue iMobile PhoneRescue is one of those reliable third-party services that can retrieve lost messages or other file types. If you need contacts, call history, message attachments, voicemail, calendar, reminders, notes, and more recovered, PhoneRescue is to the rescue. The feature utilizes your iCloud account, Finder, and device backups to recover data. It also comes with a series of repair tools that ultimately help you save lost data in case your device crashes. One single-year subscription for this service costs about $50. Wondershare Dr.Fone If you're looking for a recovery service specific to iOS devices, check out Wondershare. This tool can be installed on both Mac and Windows computers and is helpful for a wide range of people. This program helps navigate crashes and recover any missing text messages, photos, videos, or even data from other third-party apps — like WhatsApp. One license for this software costs about $60 per person annually. Tenorshare UltData Tenorshare rescues both messages and media, reaching dozens of file types across your device and third-party applications. That includes data from WhatsApp, SMS, contacts, and photos. This service comes with three separate recovery modes — and it allows users to preview items that have been restored before they're officially restored. This software is compatible with the newest phone models and with the most recent iOS. A license for one year costs users $60. Editors' Recommendations
