It also displays a pie chart in excelMaking a pie chart in excel Making a pie chart in excel can help you with the pictorial representation of your data and simplifies the analysis process. There are multiple kinds of pie chart options available on excel to serve the varying user needs, read more, which provides a pictorial presentation of expenses. It contains the following heads: #1 - Budget and Expenses: The head displays the total budget and expenses and surplus/shortfall are calculated fields. Refer to the screenshot below for details: #2 - Expenses Pie Chart: The pie chart is a pictorial presentation of expenses that is auto-populated based on the inputs in the next section. The expenses are grouped into broad categories, and the pie chart is prepared to present those categories only. Refer to the screenshot below for details. #3 - Expenses the user will expect to incur during the travel. The expenses are further broken down the number of units per expense and the cost per unitCost per unitCost per unit is defined as the amount of money spent by a corporation over a period of time to product or service, and it takes into account two components in its calculation; variable and fixed costs. It aids in determining the selling price of the company's product or services.read more. The amount column gives the total of each line item. Refer to the screenshot below for details. How to Use this Template? As a user, you can start right away with the template to plan your travel. Start with your total budget: #1 - Total Budget: The total budget is an amount you would have kept aside for the travel. This is an estimated number that you would have earmarkedEarmarking refers to a fund allocation practice in which an entity, a government, or an individual decisions.read more as your budget. Start with an amount which will not result in the stretching of your finance. If you have this figure in your mind in advance, you will do well in populating the next section will have to be worked on again and again. #2 - Expenses: Once you have earmarked your travel budget, you can move on to expenses. In the template, the expenses have been grouped under five basic categories, namely transportation, lodging, food, entertainment, and others. All these categories have further sub-heads that can be directly populated in the table. Following is how we unpack these categories have further sub-heads that can be directly populated in the table. expenses, which might form a big chunk of your overall expenses. Transportation further includes taxi/bus/metro/trains, driving, and parking. You would need to calculate the total number of units, including to and from. The measure of units and the per unit cost Unit cost is the total cost (fixed and variable) incurred to produce, store and sell one unit of a product or service. It is calculated by adding fixed and variable expense and dividing it by the total number of units produced read more is shown in parentheses in the line item. #4 - Lodging will include the cost of living, mainly hotels. You can input other sorts of expenses like resorts, apartments, etc. in the hotel section only. You can also add rows to incorporate more detail if you will be changing accommodations during the travel. You can then put the number of days of stay in each hotel and cost per day in each hotel to arrive at your total lodging expenses. #5 - Food: Food is also a necessary expense while traveling as travelers love to explore food when they visit different places within or outside their countries. The food expense is further broken down into three meals, breakfast, lunch, and dinner. Calculate the number of meals for all days and put a cumulative number in the quantity field. The cost per meal is self-explanatory. #6 - Entertainment: Entertainment expenses can include the cost of visiting amusement parks, indulging in activities, watching shows, visiting museums, etc. There could be a long list of things you could be doing on a trip. If you want to list them separately, you can add rows and adequately categorize them in the category row for it to show up correctly in the pie chart. #7 - Other: All other expenses, like shopping and purchases, are bunched into others. Make sure you categorize expenses right for them to show in the pie chart. The necessary work that one needs to do before travel is to decide on which places separately by adding rows to make a more precise assumption on the expenditures. Accounting for multiple locations to travel separately will be a good exercise because the cost of traveling, including food, lodging, and transportation, will differ for different places. Conclusion While planning travel, one must research the approximate costs of all the heads to arrive at a reasonable estimate of expenses. Without research, the estimate is the preliminary stage for any project, operation, or program in which a reasonable calculation of all project costs is performed and thus requires precise judgement, experience, and accuracy read more accuracy read more and accuracy read more and accuracy read more and accuracy read more accuracy read more and accuracy read more accuracy The user must make sure to add the right category while adding rows for the pie chart to be correctly updated. In the case of shortfalls, one can increase the budget or rework the expenses to bring the travel expenses under budget. Recommended Articles This has been a guide to the travel budget template.
